

Lexington-Concord & American Independence

Commemoratives of Interwoven Historical Significance

THE Centennial celebration of Yorktown in 1881 was commemorated by the issuance of the famous Yorktown Centennial Medal of 1881, believed by some to have been the design inspiration for the LaFayette dollar. Although the conjoined Washington and LaFayette busts on the medal may have served Charles Barber as a design or layout idea, the individual effigies were directly inspired by Houdon's Washington bust and Cunois' head of LaFayette on a French mint medal.

The reverse of the LaFayette dollar by Barber features the equestrian statue of LaFayette by Paul Wayland Bartlett. The LaFayette statue, whose design was approved by the Paris "Commission des Beaux Arts" (a board which judges all statues to be erected in that city), was part of the American representation at the Paris International Exposition of 1900.

Initial sales of the LaFayette dollars rapidly reached 30,000 by subscription, but the LaFayette Memorial Commission succeeded in selling only some 36,000 coins at $2 each of the original 50,026 piece issue. Recent price quotations for the LaFayette dollar average $135 for choice uncirculated specimens.

This price has undergone few changes during the past year. The coin's main interest lies in its distinction of being the only commemorative U. S. silver dollar.

Although General Von Steuben's contributions to American independence match LaFayette's achievements, the Prussian general was never commemorated on U. S. coinage. This official deficiency was made up in 1930 by the issuance of a two-cent commemorative stamp, celebrating the Bicentennial of Von Steuben's birth and "in recognition of the exceptional services rendered the Colonial cause during the Revolutionary War."

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Lexington and Concord was celebrated by the issuance of the Lexington-Concord Sesquicentennial commemorative half dollar in May, 1925. Although 300,000 pieces were authorized, the issue was limited to 162,099 pieces sold at $1 each by the United States Lexington-Concord Sesquicentennial Commission.

The Chester Beach designs show the famous "Minute Men" statue of Concord, Mass. on the obverse and the Old Belfrey of Lexington, Mass. on the reverse. Recent price quotations for the Lexington-Concord Sesquicentennial half dollar average $12 for choice uncirculated specimens.

Of special interest to collectors of Colonial War material is a medal, still issued by the U. S. Mint, entitled "Washington before Boston" authorized by Resolution of Congress of March 25, 1776. It was designed by Du Vivier, struck in bronze, measuring 2 5/8 inches. Price: $3.75. U. S. Mint order No. 401.

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence was celebrated by the issuance of the Sesquicentennial of American Independence commemorative half dollar and the $2 1/2 gold piece.

The half dollar issue was a monumental financial flop in spite of its considerable historical significance. Indeed of the 1,000,528 half dollars struck, 859,408 pieces were returned to the melting pot, leaving a net mintage of 141,120 pieces, sold at $1 each at the Sesquicentennial Exposition.

The design was authorized by John R. Sinnock then Chief Engraver of the U. S. Mint and also the designer of the Franklin half dollar. The weak strikes of the Sesquicentennial half dollar are proverbial, although the reasons for failure of the issue should not be attributed to this factor.

The presence of Calvin Coolidge conjointly with George Washington on the obverse design can rightfully be considered an historical aberration, and illustrates to perfection the loose and haphazard ways of commemorative design motivation.

The reverse features the illustration of the famous Liberty Bell. Author Edward M. Riley described the origins of the famous sound piece: "The Liberty Bell is the most venerated symbol of patriotism in the United States; its fame as an emblem of liberty is worldwide. In the affections of the American people today it overshadows even Independence Hall, although veneration for the latter began much earlier. Its history, a combination of facts and folklore, has firmly established the Liberty Bell as the tangible image of political freedom. To understand this unique position of the bell, one must go beyond authenticated history (for the bell is rarely mentioned in early records) and study the folklore which has grown up.

"The known facts about the Liberty Bell can be quickly told. Properly, the story starts on November 1, 1751, when the superintendents of the State House of the Province of Pennsylvania (now Independence Hall) ordered a bell of about two thousand pounds weight for use in that building. They stipulated that the bell should have cast around its crown the Old Testament quotation, 'Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof.' Most likely, this phrase was chosen in commemoration of William Penn's Charter of Privileges issued 50 years earlier.

"Thomas Lester's foundry at Whitechapel, in London, was the scene of casting the bell. Soon after its arrival in Philadelphia, in August 1752, the brand new bell was cracked 'by a stroke of the clapper without any other violence as it was hung up to try the sound.' At this juncture, those now famous 'two ingenious workmen of Philadelphia,' Pass and Stow, undertook to recast the cracked bell. After at least one recorded failure to produce an instrument of pleasing tone, their efforts were successful, and in 1753, the bell began its period of service, summoning the legislators to the Assembly and opening the courts of justice in the State House."

Far superior in historical significance emerges the $2 1/2 gold piece commemorating the Sesquicentennial of American Independence. Although more successful than its silver half dollar companion, of the 200,226 gold $2 1/2 pieces struck, 154,207 were returned to the U. S. Mint. The residual 46,019 pieces were sold at $4 each. The obverse design features an allegorical draped standing Liberty, holding the Torch of Freedom in one hand and a scroll depicting the Declaration of Independence in the left hand. Aesthetically equally attractive is the reverse which features Independence Hall in Philadelphia, now the home of Liberty Bell.

The historical meaning of Independence Hall is described by Edward M. Riley: "The 'State (Continued on Page 18)"

The World of U.S. Paper Money

Numismatic Interest In Current Paper Emerging

WE are indebted to the Federal Reserve Banks of Atlanta, Minneapolis, New York and Richmond for the documentary material presented in this article. After all, who could better write about paper money than the people who issue it.—Ed.

The collection of current U. S. paper money is a rapidly expanding field, although still in its infancy. By contrast, Colonial paper money assignats, fractional currency, broken bank notes, etc. occupy a distinct place of honor in numismatic collections.

The major reason for interest in current paper money can be found in relative high coin prices. The ranks of paper money collectors abound with disenchanted coin collectors who, faced with the high cost of metallic currency, abandoned the field altogether to try their hand, for example, at low serial Fed notes.

Unquestionably, paper money collecting offers a wide scope of interest, it encompasses the fields of graphic design, engraving, precision printing, the art of paper making at its best, the judicious use of color and a myriad of factors all equally stimulating to the inquisitive mind.

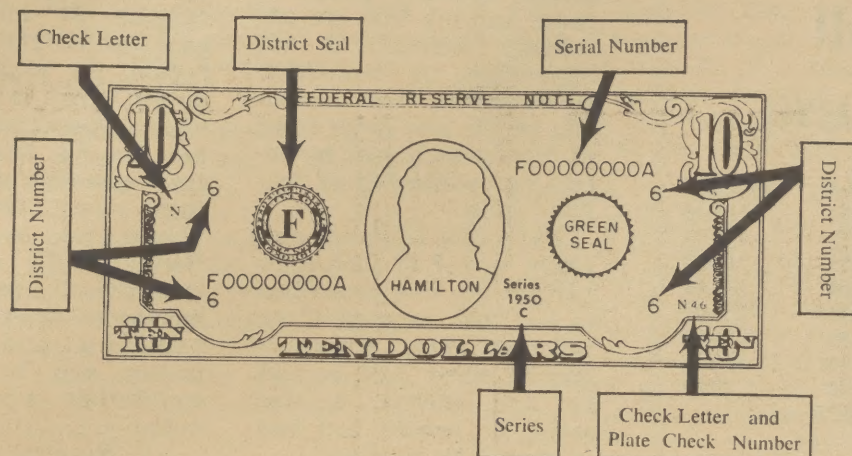

One phenomena however has clearly emerged: on a percentage basis, the average paper money collector, decidedly in a minority group, proves better informed about metallic currency than its coin-collecting counterpart is about paper money.

Often, sophisticated coin collectors have many misconceptions about the issuance, circulation and functions of paper money; obviously this results strictly from over specialization. In view of these facts, a general and elementary review of U. S. paper money is offered here; it is not intended to encourage the collection of paper money but rather to serve as a general refresher and introduction to the subject. (Data, charts and statistics courtesy of Federal Reserve Banks of Richmond, New York, Atlanta and Minneapolis.)

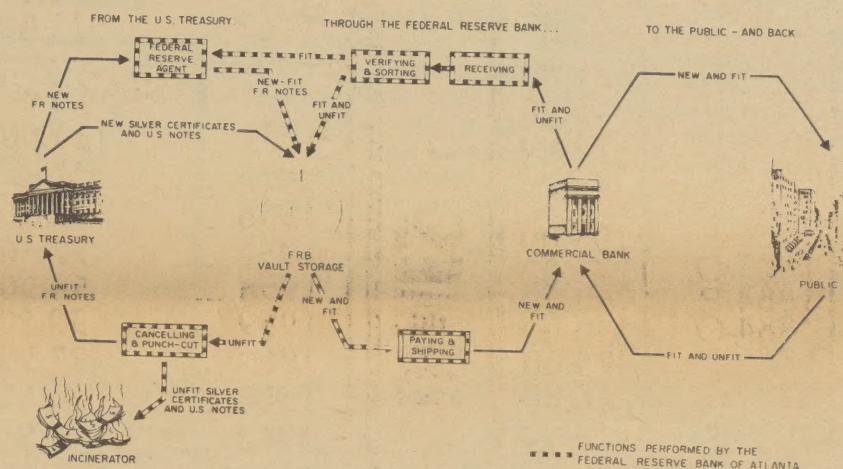

The major categories of current U. S. paper money include: United States Notes, issued in $2 and $5 denominations. As required by an Act of May 31, 1878, the amount outstanding is kept at $346,681,016. The Treasury holds a reserve in gold of $156,039,431 against these notes. The Treasury Seal and the Serial Number are RED.

Silver Certificates, issued in $1, $5, and $10 denominations. By an Act of Congress in 1963, Silver Certificates are gradually being retired from circulation, thus freeing the bullion stocks of silver (required to back the present supply of Silver Certificates) for minting of silver halves, quarters, and dimes. The Treasury Seal and the Serial Number are BLUE.

Federal Reserve Notes, issued in denominations of $1, $5, $10, $20, $50, and $100. Although the

FLOW OF CURRENCY

$500, $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000 bills have been authorized, they are in such small demand that they are not being printed at present; the $100 note is the highest denomination printed since 1945. The first $1 Federal Reserve Notes were authorized by Congress June 4, 1963, and issued November 26, 1963. They will, in time, replace the $1 Silver Certificate. Federal Reserve Notes have a 100-percent backing, 25 percent in gold and the rest mostly in U. S. Government Securities. These notes make up about 90 percent of the total currency in circulation today. The Treasury Seal and the Serial Number are GREEN.

Other categories, no longer issued or in the process of retirement, include: Federal Reserve Bank Notes, no new notes may be issued. In process of retirement. Reserve: Deposits of lawful money of equal monetary value to redeem outstanding notes. When last authorized to be issued, the reserve was: a) any direct obligation of the United States or b) any notes, drafts, bill of exchange, or bankers' acceptances acquired by the Federal Reserve Banks.

National Bank Notes, no new notes may be issued. In process of retirement. Reserve: Deposits of lawful money of equal monetary value to redeem outstanding notes.

Gold Certificates, issued by the Treasury and paid to Federal Reserve Banks only. These certificates are not permitted to enter the currency circulation of the country. The small amount now shown as outstanding is an overhang from pre-1934 days when gold coins and certificates circulated freely. Reserve: Gold Bullion of equal monetary value.

Currency in Circulation

The expansion of currency in circulation in the past eighty years is demonstrated by figures from the Treasury Department monthly circulation statement for selected years. Likewise the expansion of per capita money supply is illustrated. (See table 1) Does not include money held by the Treasury and Federal Reserve Banks.

Date	Amount in Circulation	Amount Per Capita
Jan. 1, 1879	$ 816,266,721	16.76
June 30, 1914	3,459,434,174	34.90
June 30, 1920	5,698,214,612	53.18
June 30, 1930	4,521,987,962	36.74
June 30, 1940	7,847,501,324	59.40
June 30, 1950	27,156,290,042	179.03
June 30, 1960	32,064,619,064	177.47
Dec. 31, 1962	35,338,191,768	187.91
Dec. 31, 1963	37,691,637,528	197.53

Of further interest are the amounts of various denominations making up the totals. As of December 31, 1963, for example, $1 bills in circulation totaled $1,721,929,977; subsidiary silver (dimes, quarters, and halves) totaled $1,871,844,434; and minor coin (cents and nickels) came to $706,184,153.

The largest dollar amount for any one denomination was the $20 bills — $12,109,364,106. Next largest was the total for $10 bills — $7,373,364,631. The total for $100 bills in circulation was $7,110,011,350 — more than the total amount of currency and coin in circulation on June 30, 1935.

Role of Fed

The United States is divided into 12 Federal Reserve Districts, in each of which is a Federal Reserve Bank. Altogether the 12 Banks have 24 branches. Each District is designated by a number and the corresponding letter of the alphabet. The District numbers, the cities in which the 12 Banks are located, and the letter symbols are:

|----------------------|---------|
| 1 ... Boston | A |
| 2 ... New York | B |
| 3 ... Philadelphia | C |
| 4 ... Cleveland | D |
| 5 ... Richmond | E |
| 6 ... Atlanta | F |
| 7 ... Chicago | G |
| 8 ... St. Louis | H |
| 9 ... Minneapolis | I |
| 10 ... Kansas City | J |
| 11 ... Dallas | K |
| 12 ... San Francisco | L |

The Federal Reserve Banks issue their own Federal Reserve Notes according to the need in their regions. You can easily tell which Federal Reserve Bank issued a particular note by looking at the District Seal, printed in black at the left of the portrait and showing the name of the Bank in the circle; the letter corresponding to the District number stands in the center of the Seal. The District number appears on both ends of the face of the note above and below the center area just inside the engraved border.

For example: The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta is headquarters for the Sixth District. Notes issued by that Bank, therefore, carry the sixth letter of the alphabet, F, in the center of the District Seal. The New York Bank is headquarters for the Second District, and on notes issued by that Bank, the second letter, B, appears in the Seal.

Paper Currency Features

All United States currency is produced in Washington, D. C., by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which also designs, engraves, and prints official items such as Government bonds and postage, internal revenue, customs, and savings stamps.

Highly skilled engravers cut the designs for the various pieces of currency into steel, from which printing plates are made.

For security reasons, each artist is responsible for only a certain section of the design. Every feature, such as the portrait, lettering, and scroll work, however, is carefully executed so as to be distinct in every detail.

The Bureau takes all possible precautionary measures against counterfeiting. It uses, for example, specially produced paper and ink that are extremely difficult, if not impossible, to reproduce. Nevertheless, the American people lose large sums of money each year by accepting counterfeit or "bogus" bills.

Until July 1929, our currency was 7.42 inches by 3.13 inches, now described as the "old, large-size" or "blanket" bills. Currency printed since 1929 is 6.14 by 2.61 inches, a size easier to handle and less expensive to produce.

Portraits and Emblems

Pictured on the face of our currency are deceased, distinguished American statesmen. The reverse show famous buildings or monuments or numeral emblems. Portraits and emblems appearing on the various denominations are:

Den. Face Reverse
$1 Washington, Ornate One and U. S. Seal.
$2 Jefferson, Monticello.
$5 Lincoln, Lincoln Memorial.
$10 Hamilton, U. S. Treasury.
$20 Jackson, White House.
$50 Grant, U. S. Capitol.
$100 Franklin, Independence Hall.
$500 McKinley, Ornate Five Hundred.

$1,000 Cleveland, Ornate One Thousand.

$5,000 Madison, Ornate Five Thousand.

$10,000 Chase, Ornate Ten Thousand.

Bank tellers and others who know how to handle currency use the portrait in assembling and counting it. They assemble each denomination separately and uniformly — Face Up and Top Up. In arranging $1 bills, which bear the portrait of Washington, for example, they do not turn our first president's face down or stand him on his head; rather they assemble the bills so that they are looking Washington in the eye. Handling the money in this orderly way greatly increases their skill in sorting and counting money and in detecting counterfeit and altered notes.

All Reserve Banks require commercial banks to arrange their currency for deposit in this way. Serial Number—The serial num-

Mail Auction Sales

Lesson In Purchasing Mail-Order Gains

By William Meyers

MANY collectors have heard of a mail bid sale, but how many fully understand it? A mail bid sale enables both the collector and investor the opportunity of obtaining key and semi-key coins at reasonable current prices. It is a means by which individuals may dispose of their collection without the services of a dealer. This type of business venture offers the individual the opportunity to purchase coins not obtainable through their local broker.

This leads us to the definition of a mail bid sale, which is an auction conducted through postal correspondence. Bidders receive an auction sheet which contains (1) a list of the coins to be auctioned, (2) the conditions of the coins, (3) the minimum bid or amount the auction firm will sell the coin for, and (4) the rules governing the sale, which are printed at the top of the auction sheet.

It should be carefully pointed out that many mail bid sales are not true auctions at all, because the people conducting these auctions are not licensed by any governmental agency. A licensed auctioneer will state his legal position on all mail bid auctions he conducts.

The rules and guides that will be presented will help you to form opinions, but the real merit of mail bidding must be found through experience. Bidding is an art which must be approached with the proper attitude.

Listed at the top of a mail auction sheet is a set of rules which should be closely observed. Read CAREFULLY every item in the terms of the sale. Only by unimpaired reading and complete understanding can you hope to actively participate in the auction. A lackadaisical hurried reading of the listed stipulations will detract from your personal and possible financial enjoyment of the mail bid sale. The cardinal rule of mail bidding: meticulous reading!

Bidding is an art equal in importance to that of careful reading. Bidding on lots that you have no interest in can only lead to trouble, and should be positively avoided. Overbidding your financial backing, is another common fault of the inexperienced mail bidder. When you submit a successful bid, you are obligated to back that bid with prompt, full payment. Upon notice of successful bids, a maximum of five days should be allowed before your remittance is mailed.

Most auctions have a minimum bid, which is the least amount that the association will accept for that particular coin, on all or most of the lots. You are free to bid whatever you consider a fair price, when no minimum bid is listed or required. All bids should be over dealer's buying prices as these auctions are not "give-away" sales.

Most auction catalogs specify that either a deposit of twenty-five per cent of the sum total of all bids accompany the bid sheet, or satisfactory credit references established. The deposit is promptly refunded if you are unsuccessful, or credited to you if you have winning bids. The seller, auctioneer, and unsuccessful bidder are protected by this type of stipulation.

It is the policy of certain auction companies that no part of the merchandise may be returned for any reason, other than a shipping error, without the consent of the auctioneer. This demand sometimes throws an added burden on the bidder, who must take the responsibility for this demand. Coins may be returned only if unsatisfactorily graded, or a shipping mistake arises. This protective measure minimizes the coins that are returned only because the successful bidder no longer wishes these coins for his portfolio.

The only answer to this particular problem is don't bid in auctions that will unnecessarily degrade your bidding privileges. So follow these two simple rules: (1) read the auction terms carefully, and (2) refuse to participate in any mail auction that takes unnecessary advantage of your bidding privilege.

You have certain responsibilities and certain definite privilege when you enter a postal auction.

As a bidder the following rights should be granted: (1) the right to return material that is improperly graded, or a coin that is definitely a forgery. If a minute discrepancy arises between the bidder and auctioneer over the grading of a coin, it should not be returned. Brown and Dunn's system of grading is the most widely used of the grading methods, and in most cases this is the system used by the mail auction firm. (2) the privilege to receive a list of prices realized in the auction, which is called a "price realization sheet" and usually may be purchased for a nominal fee. The list is published and distributed to remove the opportunity for the auctioneer to manipulate the bids he receives. For your bidding safety, refuse to participate in any mail auction not offering you the option of purchasing a list. This list may help you determine the current market price of the coins in your portfolio.

If you are unacquainted with the mail bid system it is a good rule to experiment with nominal priced items; submit reasonable bids; and learn from the bids that you submit. The "drawbacks" in the mail bid system are better understood after such an experiment is conducted. Compare the bids that you submitted to the bids listed on the price realization sheet. Contemplate how the successful bidder arrived at that price and apply that method to your own bidding. Use dealers buying lists as well as current retail sheets in figuring the current value of the item.

After experimenting with different mail auction firms, preferences will only be natural. Certain dealer's grading, advertising policies, auction rules, realization sheets, and over all mode of business will be more to your delectation.

Bidding a percentage of the market may a noteworthy guide. (1) For coins that you want, and want immediately, you must bid catalog or higher. Key coins will not be given away, as competition is great. You must be prepared to bid up to ten per cent over the current market or teletype price to assure yourself of being in the running. (2) For coins that you want, but don't especially like paying full retail to purchase, bid seventy to ninety per cent of the current market. (3) Include a few bids that are extremely low in comparison with the teletypewriter, such as forty-seventy per cent. These bids are known as "kickers." It is the smart collector or investor who throws in a few kicker, and is pleasantly surprised if he wins the lots. (4) Bid an uneven amount of money. For example, bid $1.04 rather than $1.00. This form of bidding could very well diserve you from the unsuccessful bidders. (5) As duplicate lots are not very common in mail bidding, make the bid you submit an honest one, at least over face value. In the case of two or more similar bids, duplicate lots will be awarded, or the bidder with the earliest postmark will be declared the winner.

On the closing date of the sale, which is usually listed at the top of the auction sheet, the auctioneer will mail out invoices. These invoices list the lots on which the bidder has been successful. Also included on the invoice is the postage and insurance charge, which offers protection for both the purchaser and the auctioneer. It is your responsibility to reply promptly to the invoice. Your remittance should be mailed no later than five days after your notification of success is delivered. The coins will be mailed out immediately if the remittance is a money order, certified check, or bank draft. Personal checks are usually held seven to ten days pending clearance by the banks. Allow two weeks for shipments of large orders as most of these are mailed fourth class US parcel post.

The mail bid sale offers you the opportunity to purchase choice material for a reasonable amount. Extremely rare material, not likely to be stocked by your local dealer, is often offered. The opportunity for you to participate in a mail bid sale awaits you. Many respectable dealers await your patronage. They will be more than happy to see that you receive a regular auction list. Why not experience the sensation for yourself?

Mail Auction Phraseology

Auction rules — Terms established by the auctioneer under which the auction is to be conducted.

Terms of Sale — Same as the auction rules.

Bid — The price submitted on a certain lot by the person partaking in the mail bid auction.

Nuisance bid — A bid that is extremely low. Often it is less than the face value of the lot.

Unreasonable bid — Same as a nuisance bid.

Hold — The least amount the auctioneer will accept for a certain lot.

Minimum bid — Same as a hold bid.

Buy bid — A bid requesting that the auctioneer fill in an amount in excess of the highest bid offered by another bidder.

Deposit — The amount of the total mail bids, usually 25%, which has to be payed in advance. The deposit is used to ensure that the bidder is serious in his intentions.

Consigner — One who submits material to an auction firm to sell for them through a mail bid sale.

Consignment — The coins sent by the consigner.

Commission — The percentage of the selling price deducted from the sellers profits for the services of the auctioneer.

Sold to book — In certain mail auctions which combine floor and mail bidding, the highest bidder was a mail bidder.

Return privilege — The right of the successful bidder to return promptly any material that was improperly graded, or return material in which a shipping mistake has occurred.

ber appears in two places on the face of all United States currency — in the upper right and lower left portions. Serial numbers on all currency (except national bank notes, now in process of redemption) are always in eight digits.

They also have a prefix letter and a suffix letter, unless they are star notes (see below). The letters are considered a part of the number. Thus on United States Notes and Silver Certificates, the first note of any denomination in a new series year will have the serial number A00000001 A, and the second A 00000002 A, and so on.

On Federal Reserve Notes, the letter in front of the serial number (the prefix letter) corresponds to the District number.
Notes issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta are Sixth District notes and letter preceding the serial number is the sixth letter of the alphabet
—F.

No two notes of the same kind, denomination, and series have the same serial number, a fact that can be important in detecting counterfeit notes, since counterfeiters usually make large batches of a particular note bearing the same serial number.
Genuine notes are numbered by an automatic numbering machine, which a counterfeiter would have a difficult time getting without arousing suspicion as to its use. To number the notes individually and in sequence, therefore, the counterfeiter would have to set type for the numbers and change it manually with each impression — a tedious, time-consuming, expensive operation.

Star Notes — If a note is damaged in the process of printing, it is replaced with a "star" note. Since it would be impractical to use the same serial num-

The Numismatica Domestica was introduced into the United States in 1590 and is now found in all of the 50 states. It is one of the oldest known forms of universal insects and has changed very little through the centuries. This bug prefers to live in close contact with man, and there is no known escape once he has bitten. The germ transmitted by the insect is highly contagious and has been known to pleasantly infect entire families.

Among the bug's distinguishing characteristics are the distinctive markings embedded on its back, symbolic of its world travels. Its two pair of wings allow it to fly swiftly and silently from one happy victim to another. His three pair of legs permit him to crawl from table to table during numismatic gatherings, spreading his germ.

Recent surveys show that the disease carried by the Numismatica Domestica is becoming widespread, and that those it has bitten are banded together comparing symptoms.

Having been bitten, you will want the fraternity emblem that identifies its wearer wherever he goes - now available in the following beautifully gold-plated, hand-

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

IT'S a funny thing, but we get local inquiries daily via the telephone asking for values on coins that have been found, but we get more phone calls from people who ask us 'What is a dollar bill worth without "IN GOD WE TRUST" on the reverse of the bill'. This just goes to show that people in general do not take too much notice of the money that passes through their hands.

A law passed by the 84th Congress and approved by the President on July 11, 1955, provided that "In God We Trust" shall appear on all United States Coins and paper currency. One dollar silver certificates bearing the motto were made available to the public nationwide in October of 1957, but there were still millions of the dollar bills without the motto in circulation and still more millions of them that hadn't even been delivered from the Federal Reserve Banks to the local banks.

The motto 'In God We Trust' first appeared on a United States coin in 1864 on the two cent piece and owes its presence there largely to the increased religious sentiment existing through the Civil War. The Secretary of the Treasury at that time was Salmon P. Chase and he received numerous appeals from devout persons all over the country urging that the Deity be suitably represented on the coins of the United States in a manner similar to that commonly found on the coins of other nations.

If you have ever noticed any foreign coins dating back to that period and way before it, you will notice that most of the coins have the bust of the ruler in power on the face of the coin. Then you will note the rulers name, such as Charles III, followed by D. G. REX then the name of the country, etc. . . the initials "D. G." represent the Latin abbreviation for "By the Grace of God."

On November 30th, 1861, Secretary of the Treasury Chase wrote a letter to the director of the Philadelphia Mint and advised such a device be placed on our coins. He stated in his letter that "No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his derense."

The familiar form of the motto finally was decided on, but the use of the motto has not been uninterrupted. It has not appeared on all coins of the series. Following the appearance of the motto on the two cent piece of 1864, it appeared on the twenty and five dollar gold pieces of 1866 as well as on the silver dollars, half dollars, and quarters of that year.

The year 1866 was the first year of the issuance of the shield nickel, and this new coin bore the motto from 1866 through 1883 when the design of the coin was changed to the Liberty Head nickel. The motto did not appear on the Liberty Head nickels, and it was not restored until the issuance of the Jefferson nickels in 1938. Cents did not bear the motto until the first Lincoln cents were issued in 1909, and it appeared on the dime first in 1916, the Mercury dime, and has been used on these coins since. Now here is an interesting sidelight.

President Theodore Roosevelt personally objected to the use of the Deity's name on coins of the United States, and due to this fact, the 1907 and part of the 1908 ten and twenty dollar gold pieces were issued without the motto on them until an act of Congress restored the motto to the coins in 1908.

United States currency had its beginning during the Civil War period but we cannot find any mention of the motto being requested for currency at that time. The first notes were the demand notes which were issued in 1861 which promised to 'pay on demand' dollars. There was a slight problem though which made the bills very unpopular at the time. The problem was that at the same time the currency was issued the Government suspended specie payments, (gold and silver coin). In other words they would not convert this new paper money into coin. Naturally the public accepted these notes with reluctance, but there was not too much they could do about it. To try to overcome this problem, the Government replaced the 'demand' notes with 'legal tender notes'.

The Federal Government was hard pressed for funds due to the Civil War and to the depression, and had little to place in reserve to back the legal tender notes.

Prior to the Civil War there was currency floating around the country, but all of it was currency that had been issued by individual banks with the authority of State Government only. The lack of proper enforcement of controls and the different banking regulations from state to state had failed to create a sound paper money. At the outbreak of the War, the Federal Government curtailed the issuance of paper money by the various states.

Fully mindful that some of the State banks were still financially sound although unable to issue currency, the Federal Government enacted the National Currency Act of 1863. This act authorized those banks that had obtained a National Charter for a period of twenty years to issue currency. The first charter period was from 1862 to 1882, the second from 1882 to 1902, and the third from 1902 to 1935.

During the third charter period there was legislation enacted which provided for automatic renewals of the charters. The first national bank notes were issued in 1863. Each charter period was characterized by a different type of note, but all are identified as national bank notes by the presence of the individual bank's name, and the signatures of its officers' on the obverse, which signatures were usually written in by hand.

All except a few of the very earliest of the national bank notes bear the charter number of the bank on the note.

National bank notes are collected in many different ways. All of them have local interest because of the autographs of local friends or relatives. Most of the notes bear interesting etchings of scenes depicting American history. Because of the long span of years over which these notes were printed, and the number of banks issuing them, there are over 14,000 varieties in existence the various states.

All of the bills issued in the United States prior to 1928 were of the large 'saddle blanket' variety. All of the bills since then are the size of the current bills used today. Just recently the motto was added to the two dollar bills, and some people are wondering when the rest of our bills will have the motto.

ber as the one of the mutilated note, a star note has its own special serial number and a star; otherwise it is the same as other notes. On United States Notes and Silver Certificates, the star takes the place of the prefix letter; on Federal Reserve Notes, the suffix letter. The serial number on a star U. S. change is made in the design, however, that does not constitute a new design or require a completely new engraving plate. In such case the series year remains the same, but a letter is added to indicate that the design differs a little from previous printings of the particular issue.

An example of a minor change might be in the signatures in the event of a change in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury or Treasurer of the United States. The number of minor changes is shown by the appropriate letter of the alphabet. Series 1935C, for example, means that the particular design has been changed slightly on three different occasions.

Check letter and Plate check number—The small capital letter that appears on the face of paper currency in the upper left-hand area and again in the lower right-hand corner is the Check Letter. (If the note has been printed on one of the Bureau's new presses which print 32 notes to a sheet, Series 1957 and 1963, the letter in the upper left-hand area will be followed by a quadrant number.) These letters indicate the position of the note on the printing plate.

The number to the right of the Check Letter in the lower right-hand corner of the face of a note is the Place Check Number. This number indicates the particular face plate from which a note was produced. The back Plate Check Number appears on the reverse, or green side, of a note in the lower right-hand position just inside the ornamental border.

The Great Seal of the United States—The Great Seal of the United States was first placed on the Series 1935 $1 Silver Certificates. Subsequently, it appeared on the Series 1957 $1 Silver Certificates and the Series 1963 $1 Federal Reserve Notes.

The backs of our $1 Federal Reserve Notes and Silver Certificates show both sides of the Seal. In 1776, the Continental Congress appointed Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, and John Adams to Three facts making mint sealed bags of 1964 Canadian coins as good an investment as any have come to light during the past few months. First, we are not as yet involved in any date freeze. Second, the value of the Canadian dollar appears to be in for a higher value compared to U.S. dollar which will force an increase of about 5% in our prices and third this year is the last of the young head of Elizabeth on the coins. Put these facts together with the very low mintage compared to U.S. striking and the possibilities are unlimited. We won't be able to supply much longer so we suggest that you order now.

arrange for the preparation of a seal for the United States of America. This committee and two other committees labored over the design for six years. Finally, the third committee enlisted the aid of William Barton, M.A., the son of a Philadelphia Episcopal clergyman and an authority on heraldry. Mr. Barton created two designs, one of which was assembled and simplified by Charles Thomson, Secretary of Congress, and presented to Congress with descriptions and explanations. Congress adopted the design in 1782.

The face of the Seal, on the right-hand side of the $1 bill, shows the American bald eagle with wings and claws outstretched. Above the eagle's head is a "glory" containing 13 stars. The eagle's breast holds a shield with 13 stripes — the first idea of a united nation. The right claws hold an olive branch, representing peace, and the left a bundle of 13 arrows, symbolizing war; the head of the eagle is turned toward the olives, indicating a desire for peace, even during war. The words and symbols in "13" represent the original 13 states.

The top of the shield represents Congress, free elections, representative democracy, and justice. Heraldry authorities hold that the head of the bald eagle represents the Executive Branch. The nine tail feathers represent the Judiciary. The Latin motto on a ribbon held in the beak of the eagle, E PLURIBUS UNUM (thirteen letters), means "Out of Many,

One."

On the back of the Seal is an unfinished pyramid, a symbol of material strength and an enduring foundation for future growth and a goal of perfection. Above the pyramid is a "glory" or burst of light with an eye inside a triangle, referring to the eternal eye of God, and placing the spiritual above the material. At the top and around the edge, in Latin, is the motto ANNUIT COEPTIS, meaning "God Has Favored Our Undertakings" or "Enterprise." The base of the pyramid bears the numerals MDCCLXXVI, or 1776, and below is the motto NOVUS ORDO SECLORUM or "A New Order of the Ages."

"In God We Trust". This

motto first appeared on a coin of the United States in 1864 because of high religious sentiment during the Civil War. Salmon P. Chase, then Secretary of the Treasury, authorized it after receiving a number of appeals from devout citizens urging that the Deity be recognized suitably on our coins in a form similar to that other nations used on money.

The first coin to carry the motto was a two-cent piece. The five-cent piece (nickel) bore the motto from 1866 to 1883, when it was dropped; in 1938 it was again introduced on the Jefferson nickel. In 1866 the motto was engraved on the $5, $10, and $20 gold coins, silver dollars, and 50- and 25-cent pieces. It first appeared on the cent in 1909, and on the dime in 1916.

Public law 140, approved by the 84th Congress July 11, 1955 provides "That at such times as new dies for the printing of currency are adopted in connection with the current program of the Treasury Department to increase the capacity of presses utilized by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the dies shall bear, at such place or places thereon as the Secretary of the Treasury may determine to be appropriate, the inscription 'In God We Trust', and thereafter this inscription shall appear on all United States currency and coins."

Most of our $1 Silver Certificates and all $1 Federal Reserve Notes now carry the motto. All $2 and $5 U. S. Notes, Ser-

Rupee May Bear Nehru Profile

NEW DELHI — June 15 (UPP)—India may soon mint coins embossed with Pandit Nehru's profile.

The late Premier Nehru will be the first Indian whose image will appear on Indian coins since India's independence.

Prime Minister Shastri's Secretariat has sent a proposal to the Indian Finance Minister that Mr. Nehru's image should appear on rupee coins in India. The rupee coin is the highest denomination coin in India.

LAHORE, Aug. 9. — The Pakistan Mint at Lahore has been minting coins for Syria, Saudi Arabia and the Sudan and Pakistan is expected to enter into similar contracts with some newly-independent African countries.

The information was given to the Finance Minister, Mr. Mohammad Shoaib, who visited the Mint on Saturday morning.

The Minister was also shown the sample of coins minted for the three Middle-Eastern countries.

The Finance Minister was told that the mint was already making badges and decorative medals for Kenya. The mint was earning six lakh of rupees for making badges and decorative medals for the Government and private organizations in Pakistan.

The mint was also earning one-and-a-half-lakh rupees worth of foreign exchange by exporting sets of Pakistani coins. Order for the supply of about 5,000 sets had been received from the USA alone.

The mint prepared stamps for the Post and Telegraph Departments and weighing scales for general use. Metric weights and measures were being manufactured at the mint on an experimental basis.

The Finance Minister spent about an hour in going round the various sections of the mint.

TOKYO, Feb. 13 — The Finance Ministry announced yesterday that it will issue eight million, 100-yen silver coins this autumn commemorating the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The project has a precedent in the 1952 Helsinki Olympics. The Ministry will invite the general public to join in a design contest for the commemorative coin.

The winning design will be decided by the end of June and the casting will begin in July at the Osaka Mint.—AFP PPA.

Kansas City — It was recently announced that the firm of Gregor's, one of the largest in the central U. S. has completed its move into new quarters and is now open for business.

Located in Kansas City's Brookside-Waldo area, the 3000 square foot boasts a bank-type vault, private offices and over 100 feet of display counters for collectors. The most complete stock of supplies for collectors is available in the store. The two major telephone systems, USCE and ANEDA, serve the Kansas City area.

Mr. Gregor has also expended his staff to include Mr. Bob Wilson, formerly of Enid, Oklahoma, Mr. Lloyd Schaeffer, formerly of Wichita, Kansas and Mr. Jess Kirby, formerly of Oklahoma City. All of the above gentlemen have many previous years of numismatic experience. Mr. John Barrera, manager of the store, and Mr. Melvin Flotio will specialize in stamps.

The store will continue to do local and mail order business in both stamps and coins.

House' did not become 'Independence Hall' till the last half of the 19th century. This change in designation, which began about the time of LaFayette's visit to America, is closely linked with the evolution of the building as a national shrine.

"Prior to 1824, there was but little reverence or regard for the State House. The visit of the Marquis de LaFayette to Philadelphia in that year, however, awakened an interest in the building which has persisted to this day.

"Elaborate preparations were made for the visit of the celebrated friend of America, much of it centering around the State House, which became the principal point of interest. Across Chestnut Street, in front of the building, was erected a huge arch 'constructed of frame work covered with canvas, and painted in perfect imitation of stone.' The old Assembly Room, called for the first time 'Hall of Independence,' was completely redecorated. The walls and ceiling were painted stone color, and windows were 'hung with scarlet and blue drapery studded with stars.' Portraits of Revolutionary heroes and the Presidents virtually filled the available wall space. Mahogany furniture was 'tastefully and appropriately disposed.'

"LaFayette was formally received in the 'Hall of Independence' by the Mayor and other dignitaries on September 28. On the days following, during his week-long visit, the chamber served as his levee room."

ies 1963, show the inscription. Production of $10 Federal Reserve Notes, LaFayette's close ties with America are illustrated here. Recent price quotations for the 1926 Sesqui-centennial half dollar average $15 for specimens in choice uncirculated condition, whereas the 1926 $2½ gold piece commands $62.50.

A medal of general interest to collectors of American Independence material is the 90 millimeter bronze medal designed by C. C. Wright, depicting the July 4th Session of the Continental Congress. Individual medals of the fight for American Independence period still issued by the U. S. Mint include:

Series 1963, showing the motto began in February 1964. As the Treasury Department continues with its current program of installing new high-speed rotary intaglio printing presses requiring new dies, the motto will be added to other denominations of Federal Reserve Notes. The Treasury anticipates that 77 percent of our currency production will carry the motto by April 1965.

Process of Circulation

How money gets into circulation—The Treasury ships new paper money and coins to the Federal Reserve Banks; the Banks pay it out to commercial banks; finally the money gets into the eager hands of the public. Once people spend it at department stores, grocery stores, and elsewhere, the money is redeposited in commercial banks. When the banks find they have too much on hand, they return excess amounts to the "Fed."

As the Federal Reserve Banks receive money from commercial banks, they count and sort it according to "fit" and "unfit" and store the fit (reusable) money in their vaults until it goes out again through the commercial banking system as it is needed. They retire the unfit (worn-out) currency and coins and replace them with new bills and coins, again as needed.

The retired unfit currency is then destroyed. Where it is destroyed depends upon the type of currency: Unfit U.S. Notes and Silver Certificates are burned to ashes at the various Reserve Banks. Unfit Federal Reserve Notes are sent to Washington, D. C., where the Treasury Department destroys them. The Reserve Banks and the Treasury Department apply great care and caution in destroying this worn-out money.

Damaged and worn coins are returned to the Mint for melting and making new coins. When money wears out or is burned — Like any other commodity, money wears out from handling and is sometimes accidentally damaged or destroyed.

The average life of a $1 bill, for example, is about 16 or 17 months. Larger denominations usually last longer, since they don't circulate as often the $1 bill. The Treasury asks the banks to send old, worn, torn, or soiled money to it or to a Federal Reserve Bank to be exchanged for new.

The Treasury itself makes the final determination as to redemption value of mutilated currency, that is, fragments or portions of partially destroyed paper money.

Three-fifths or more of a damaged bill, for instance, will be redeemed at full face value. Less than three-fifths, but clearly more than two-fifths, will be redeemed at one-half of face value and only by the Treasurer. Fragments not more than two-fifths are not exchangeable unless accompanied by satisfactory proof that the missing portions have been totally destroyed. This proof should be in the form of an affidavit from the owner stating that he is the owner and giving the cause and manner of the destruction or from others who know the facts.

Take damaged bills to a bank or send by registered mail to the Currency Redemption Division, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. 20220.

Counterfeit Currency

The U. S. Secret Service has prepared a revised booklet entitled "Know Your Money" to be released by the Superintendent of Documents. Pointers on how to detect and identify counterfeits are presented in abridged form excerpted from U.S. Secret Service recommendations: Portrait. GENUINE.

Stands out sharply from background. Eyes appear lifelike. Background is a fine screen of regular, unbroken lines. COUNTERFEIT. May merge with background. Eyes, etc., may be dull or smudgy. Background may be dark, with some irregular and broken lines. Face may seem unnaturally white.

Colored Seal. GENUINE. Saw-tooth points around rim are even and sharp. COUNTERFEIT. Saw-tooth points may be uneven, blunt, or broken.

Serial Numbers. GENUINE. Figures are firmly and evenly printed, well spaced. On Federal Reserve Notes, prefix letter always agrees with District letter in seal. COUN-TERFEIT. May be out of line, poorly spaced, printed too light or too dark. Prefix letter may not agree with District letter in seal.

Paper. GENUINE. Paper is very high quality. Small red and blue threads are in it, but may not be visible if the bill is badly worn or dirty. COUNTERFEIT. Paper may feel different, or may be whiter than genuine paper. Threads may be imitated by fine red and blue lines made by a pen.

RUBBING a bill on a piece of paper is NOT a good test. Ink can be rubbed off genuine as well as counterfeit notes. Consult an experienced money-handler if in doubt. — a bank teller, for example.

IF YOU GET A COUNTERFEIT BILL... Write your name and the date on the back of it, so you can identify it later. Write down all the details about how you got it: WHO gave it to you? WHERE did you get it? WHEN did you get it? Contact the nearest U. S. Secret Service office, the local police, a commercial bank, or any Federal Reserve Bank.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis. The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

NOVEMBER 4, 1964

By Russell Brown

WITH the exception of some slight upward activity in Lincoln cents and Peace dollars the market continued its month old trend downward and many issues returned to levels not visited since early 1964 and late 1963.

The Lincoln cent saw an equal number of advances and declines and while there were many sell orders in evidence, there were a large and almost matching number of bids. Several issues, among them the 1948-P, 1951-S and 1949-S, rose a dollar each. The small dates are still quite weak, especially the Denver variety. And the cents of the early and mid thirties are still losing ground with each passing day.

Peace dollars seem to have reached the end of their cooling off period and the week saw three issues in heavy demand. The 1923-D, 1928-S and the 1934-P all scored gains of $20 or more and only two issues lost ground. The Peace dollar market has returned to a quiet buying market with few bids at low levels being honored.

Proof sets also seem to have reached the bottom of their decline and the 1950 and 1955 sets are constantly being requested. The 1957, 1958 and the 1963 sets also are on the advance. Only the 1959 set is still experiencing difficulty. And the 1964 seems to have bottomed out at the $13 level as predicted.

Franklin half dollars had a mixed week with five issues showing gains and six issues losing as much as $10 per roll. While the 1948's, 1949's and 1950's are still in the throes of a minor selloff, the 1955-P is getting a play all its own and is on the move. The Franklin series is still receiving as many if not more bids than all others. It has been noted that many bids are at a lower than existing price level and apparently are being made with the idea of picking up choice merchandise at bargain rates.

Washington quarters were very quiet this week with few offers made to buy or to sell. Several issues, among them the 1958-P suffered from apathy and lost one to two dollars apiece. There were no major price changes in the series.

Roosevelt dimes are still unable to break out of the slump which they entered several weeks back. This week there were only two advances against 14 declines. The 1955-P regained some lost ground and the 1950-D is still getting as heavy a play as any of the dimes. The Mercuries are also in a depressed condition and many issues are available at bargain prices.

Jefferson nickels seem unable to find a friend and once again scored seventeen declines against a single advance. Only the 1954-S was wanted this week. On the down side the 1950-D, 1938-D, 1944-S, 1944-P and 1948-S all lost ten dollars per roll. The losing trend of the 1950-D seems to indicate that it will be some time before the Jefferson series makes a comeback.

Morgan dollars broke lower during the last three days with 22 issues showing declines. The 1891 issues were hard hit with the S losing $75 and the P tumbling $80. On the up side were the 1899-S and several others with gains of $20 to $25. Most of the junk dates seem to have dropped as far as they are going and the main victims of the current decline seem to be those rolls in the $200 price range.

The circulated and Canadian markets were quiet with the only activity seeming to center in the 1955-P circulated Franklin half and the 1963 uncirculated Canadian nickels. It has been noted that there are an extensive number of bag lot transactions in current Canadian coinage. And prices, unlike our own at the present time are continuing to rise.

The Market Opinion

I thought I would be able to make last week's market closing but it turned out that I had an appendix that planned otherwise. And that's a hard way to get a vacation.

As it turned out, the market wasn't going anywhere but generally downward and this week it was more of the same. It seems as though everyone had the feeling that the elections had to be completed and out of the way before any further coin activity of consequence could commence. Let us hope now that the politicking is over for another four years the market will resume its pre-election direction of growth.

We have noted a definite attitude of restraint on the part of not only new investors but also old investors who have already made profits from their coin purchases of 1963 and early 1964. Many of these old investors are doing quite a bit of selling at the present time. This added supply of coins on a very thin market is having a depressing effect that is being felt throughout investment numismatics. When this added supply of coins is purchased and removed from the market place we will see a resumption of the summer's price increases.

American Numismatics Exchange Transactions

BU Roll Prices as of Wednesday, November 4, 1964

These bid and asked prices, from the American Numismatic Exchange Inc., do not necessarily represent actual transactions. They are a guide to the range within which these coins could have been sold (indicated by the "bid") or bought (indicated by the "asked") at the time of compilation. Price changes are obtained by comparison of weekly bid prices.

Prices are wholesale quotations compiled from the American Numismatic Exchange teletype system which serves 195 coin dealers across the country.

MacARTHUR SET

With the recent passing of General MacArthur, already there are plans to strike commemorative medals in his honor. The Philippine government was way ahead of us, in 1947 as a tribute to their liberator, two commemorative coins (peso and half peso) bearing his portrait were struck at the U.S. Mint in San Francisco.

The coins bear the date 1947 with the S-Mint mark below the date. Only 100,000 pieces of the one peso were struck and 200,000 of the half peso pieces were struck. We consider them to be greatly under-priced in relation to the small quantities minted. This coin should definitely be a part of every foreign coin collection, and we expect the day to come when they will be listed in the Guidebook of U.S. Coins along with other Philippine issues. The 1947-S Peso and Half Peso MacArthur coins belong in every U.S. collection as a tribute to a great American General. It is our belief that these coins will not be too plentiful in the very near future.
